

Larger than life props

This is a project based on the story The Borrowers. We were assigned to make props that were larger than life. I chose to make a button. I cut a large circle out of card for the base, then packed the edge with newspaper to build shape. I covered the newspaper in wadding to create a bigger shape and a smoother shape. I covered the entire thing in modrock to make it hard then used a circular drill to make the holes in the centre. I then painted the button green with a highlight round the rim and covered it in varnish to make it shiny.

I sharpened a wooden pole to a point at one end with a sander and drilled a hole in the other end, then painted it grey and added varnish to make a needle.

I created thread by plaiting many pieces of string together and wined it through the button holes and roun the needle.

This was then presented in an exhibition.
